In the Claims

Substitute the following for Claim 27:

Claim 27: A computerized method of creating a response by a simulated character within an education simulation for a learner, the method comprising the steps of:

providing a data storage area for storing at least one trait of the simulated character, the at least one trait having a trait value, receiving from the learner a user statement from possible user statements provided by the simulated character, responding to the selected user statement by providing a character response by the simulated character, wherein the character response provided is determined by the trait value of the at least one trait, and generating new possible statements for the learner contained within the data storage area.

Authorization for this examiner's amendment was given in a telephone interview with James F. Goedken on April 27, 2005.
